

Taiwan Risk and Insurance Association 2023 Annual International Conference

Call for Papers

Core Concept

Taiwan Risk and Insurance Association (TRIA), in collaboration with the Department of Banking and Finance at National Chiayi University, is organizing the yearly academic conference on December 9th, 2023, at National Chiayi University. The purpose is to promote interaction among academics, enhance research development in the field of risk management and insurance, and increase opportunities for scholarly and practical exchanges. We look forward to facilitating communication among industry, government, and academia.

The conference will be conducted in a dual structure, featuring paper sessions and academic/practical forums. We cordially invite experts and scholars to explore pioneering topics, analyze global financial trends, and provide policy recommendations for the development of insurance industry. The aim of the conference is to foster academic advancement in risk and insurance, enhance collaboration among industry, government, and academia in related fields, and ultimately achieve the integration of theory and practice.

Topics of Submission

The conference is inviting papers in risk, insurance, finance, and related areas. The topics include (but are not limited to): insurance economics, insurance finance, actuarial science, insurance regulation and legislation, and other topics related to risk management or insurance.
